HARD HITTING WILL COUNT MORE THAN ANYTHING ELSE IN WILLARD-MORAN BOUT

This, Rather Than Gameness or Ability to Take Blows, Is Likely to Decide Battle Between Pile-Driver and Charge of Dynamite.

Copyright, 1916, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York Evening World). HE Willard-Moran bout will probably be won by the man who can drive in the heaviest punch.

COLUMN

Both Willard and Moran are noted for the "kick" they can produce at the critical moment in any fight. But their methods are entirely different.

> Moran, thick necked, tough as Iron, careless of possible injury and willing to traffic in blows with the hope of winning in the end, never perfected a defense.

> Willard, from the beginning of his boxing career, has studied every method of blocking or evading punishment, but is no more willing than Moran to take a backward step or to shirk his share of the mixing when gloves are flying fast.

Like Moran, Willard has very unusual assimilating powers. I've seen him fight many times, have seen him hit hard on all the "knockout spots." and have never yet seen him shaken or dazed by a blow. The nearest I have seen Willard come to showing any sign of even momentary distress was in the Havana fight with Jack Johnson. Early in the fight Johnson drove his left fist through an opening and plunged it fairly into Willard's solar plexus. Willard's mouth opened and his face was twisted into an expression of mingled pain and surprise. But his mouth closed with a snap. a scowl took the place of the grimace, and he instantly struck Johnson a heavy right hand blow on the ribs that threw him back and sent him into a swift retreat from Willard's following rush.

Think of Willard-Moran Bout

I think that Willard will surely score a knockout. He is the hardest hitter the ring ever saw. He could have knocked out Johnson in the eighth round at Havana, when he had him groggy from a heart punch, but took things easy, being content to wear Johnson down. If he could stop Johnson inside eight, it's a cinch that he can do the same to Moran in that distance, as the best Moran could do was to go twenty rounds with Johnson, never having the negro in danger.

(Only Man Who Has Stopped Moran and Who Helped Train Willard for

I think Willard is the biggest kind of a cinch against Moran, and he will win by a knockout. No boxer ever fived who can punch as hard as Jess. If Moran puts up his hands in front of his face to block, he not only is likely to have either arm broken, but his jaw as well. Willard is a terrific hitter. I don't think that he has ever yet landed full force on any one. If Moran hits him as hard as he did Coffey, and Jess gets thoroughly aroused, Moran is in for a terrible beating.

If Willard had been boxing in my time and had trained as we did then, he would have conquered any heavyweight. I think he is the best of his weight in the history of the ring. He possesses almost every thing that other great fighters had and a little bit more. That any mar Falzer had a "glass jaw" that made him drop out of the "white hope" class shortly afterward. To-day he's righting occasional preliminaries in small towns in Minnesota.

It was in that fight that I saw Moran had helper to he hardest blow he ever struck in a ring. blows that sent Coffey down nothing to that punch, all of his skill to avoid giving Willard nothing to that punch, all of his skill to avoid giving Willard a chance to land it.

This will be a battle between a pile driver and a charge of dynamice. If there's a winner it will be the pile driver and a charge of dynamice. If there's a winner it will be the pile driver and place it on the right the blows that settled Coffey the blows that settled Coffey and proper spot.
